

No.

This would be an absurd and unjustifiable reversal of the will of the people as expressed in the 1996 Telecom Act. Since when is the government in the business of coddling monopolies, where competition is a viable alternative?